250X Cadmium Not Physically Possible

The Relevant Numbers

Many have been duped by the allegation that Srila Prabhupada had exorbitant quantities of cadmium found in his hair. This is based on the claim that Dr. Morris of MURR labs tested three hair Samples D, A, and Q-2 (12.4, 14.6, and 19.9 ppm) and reported they had an average 15.73 ppm of Cd.[1] The allegation includes the statement that "Small" doses of cadmium were given on six occasions over a span of 18 months[2]

What the so-called "Complete Book of Poisoning Evidence" doesn't include are all the disclaimers Dr. Morris issued when he released the unexpected, and hard to explain, numbers reported by the NAA process[3].

A.—He explained each element, e.g., cadmium, arsenic, required a different setting for optimum measurement.
B. He notes the NAA reactor was set to detect arsenic, not cadmium. [4]
C. He notes the testing parameters used for cadmium are not as favorable as they are for arsenic
D. He points out the hair samples provided are exceptionally small
E. He stresses: "…with cadmium we cannot detect a normal level in these small samples"
F. He admits he actually stumbled upon the cadmium readings
G. He admits he was "…refining his testing techniques"
H. -He admits he increased the neutron activation to more radiation than "normal"
I. He also reports the vials provided, containing the hair samples, had their own intrinsic-presence of cadmium
J. He acknowledges a large parameter of uncertainty inherent upon the results of the NAA testing, because of the extraordinarily small sample mass (0.00012 grams)

Dr. Morris MURR Labs DISCLAIMER...

"External contamination cannot be completely ruled out without a detailed history of the sample; but one can search for possible sources of external contamination. In the instant case: I now have checked the containers the samples have been stored in and find no evidence of significant contamination sources for arsenic, cadmium, antimony, or mercury.

The Complete Book of Fraud

In fact, what the (In)Complete Book of Poisoning Evidence" doesn't even attempt to explain the 20 pages[5] of legitimate questions any person with integrity would want coherently answered before they made allegations of murder!

To determine if the 15.73 ppm allegation is even possible, this meme reverse engineers the numbers to determine how much cadmium one would need to ingest to get that ratio into Srila Prabhupada's blood stream. What we find is for that level of saturation, one would have to swallow 1,441 mg of cadmium. Oops! That is 14 times greater than those who scripted this absurd ruse admit would be lethal![6]

[3] The two world class toxicologists, Dr. Pillay and Dr. Lemos, both concurred that the NAA process is not the acceptable method for analyzing hair content. They both independently agreed that the Inductively Coupled Plasma Mark Spectro Meter (ICPMS) should have been used.

[4] Dr. Morris set his NAA calibrations to look for arsenic. So any findings of cadmium will not be reliable.

Three Potential Audiences for this Document

1st. Those NOT AT ALL CONVINCED.

These tend to be Srila Prabhupada's original disciples who knew all the alleged suspects, the mood when Srila Prabhupada departed, and may have even been in Vrindaban during the last days he was with us. They never gave any credibility to this vengeful allegation and will be happy to have this reference to share with those bamboozled by this massive form of DECEPTION.

This meme conveys what they have always known: Srila Prabhupada wasn't poisoned. Now this point is established by proving how it wasn't even possible. The first dose required to deliver of blood with 15.73 ppm of cadmium to the hair was certainly not a "Small" dose but "Fatal!" It should also be pointed out that for the hair to absorb such phenomenally high readings, 15.73ppm must be sustained in the bloodstream and that would require a daily diet of cadmium for at least several months and some toxicologists would say for over a year! Six doses over 18 months could never produce the scenario presented by those who created this vindictive ruse.

2nd LEGITIMATELY CONFUSED Individuals:

These devotees came after Srila Prabhupada departed and have been bombarded by an avalanche of propaganda found on websites and social media all over the internet. They generally do not have the time to investigate the origin of what they read to determine if it is even true. They properly believe in the ethical standard that one should be treated as innocent until they are proven guilty and expect other devotee would also honor this dignity.

Some may connect-the-dots to realize no professional has been willing to represent the poison allegations in court for over 25 years. This in itself is proof of how frivolous these allegations are why highly esteemed toxicologists scoff at how absurd this nearly three decade ruse has persisted. Comprehensive details that further explain the rational behind this meme can be found at: https://samadhitattva.com/chapter-9-pop-goes-the-250x-smoking-gun/

Innocent devotees caught in the propaganda will be relieved to know what is presented here is firm medical proof that completely vindicates all those who have been falsely accused. They will understand that when someone came to visit His Divine Grace, they were so shocked by his appearance they exclaimed something like: "He looks like he had been poisoned.!" Being the educated chemist which he was, Srila Prabhupada concurred that some medical textbooks used similar terms when describing the illness he was suffering from. Devotees no longer need to plow through verbose editorials intended to obfuscate and confuse the uninformed. Proving how impossible it is to survive the volume of cadmium required to pollute his hair at rates never seen before puts an end to all the confusion about. about what others "think" Srila Prabhupada said or meant and all the gossip about foreboding whispers

The SamadhiTattva.com website has been created To educate any Vaishnava who has struggled to unravel the propaganda from reality. It is now up and available to provide court-worthy explanations that expose this huge mendacious fraud that has perpetuated for way too long.

3rd. COGNITIVELY IMPAIRED/BEWILDERED:

Those who militantly insist Srila Prabhupada was poisoned by his most beloved associates are not willing, or capable, of understanding simple jurisprudence. They are either too wounded to think clearly, or perhaps part of the population that suffers from serious interpersonal disorders.

ISKCON-Bashers are not interested in discussing facts because they are obsessed with finding faults. They do whatever they must to keep themselves blinded by serious Dunning Kruger prejudices. They will attempt to discredit anything like this meme which changes their myopic rendition of reality because it cuts straight to the point very concisely. For those still sitting on the fence, this type of compulsive behavior further confirms whom they should be listening to.

CONCLUSION -Take Away:

It was impossible for anyone to Poison Srila Prabhupada as alleged, and those who claim otherwise have an agenda and should not be trusted. Visit https://samadhitattva.com/ to settle any doubts about this sordid subject!
